WORLD CHIEF SCOUT AND PARTY REACH VICTORIA ON TOUR

Lord and Lady Baden-Powell Cheered by Citizens—Are Glad to Return to Canada After Twelve Years—Give Praise to Movement in the Dominion

LORD Robert Baden-Powell, of Gilwell, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., beloved leader of 2,269,545 Boy Scouts in forty-six different countries, arrived in Victoria yesterday on the afternoon boat from Seattle.

Accompanying this founder of the greatest youth organization the world has ever known were his wife, Lady Baden-Powell, O.B.E., Chief Girl Guide and Girl Scout of the world; their two daughters, Hon. Heather and Hon. Betty Baden-Powell; Lieut.-Colonel Granville Walton, head of the International Rover's Association, and Mrs. Walton, and William Solway, British Columbia executive commissioner of Boy Scouts, of Vancouver.

Lord and Lady Baden-Powell beamed with delight as they were welcomed on board ship by a large delegation representing the Scout and Guide movements of the province. As they and their party walked from the ramp to the sidewalk on Belleville Street, they were greeted with cheers from a large gathering of citizens and smartly-clad Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts, Rovers and Girl Guides stood at attention.

GIVEN CHEERS
After acknowledging the welcome they stepped into the official car of the Lieutenant-Governor, and escorted by A. M. D. Fairbairn, secretary to Hon. J. W. Fordham Johnson, they drove to Government House, where they will be guests for their five-day visit here.

As the C.P.R. steamship Princess Charlotte steamed into Victoria Harbor at 1:30 p.m. yesterday, Lord and Lady Baden-Powell were seen standing on the bridge admiring the harbor bathed in the Spring sunlight.

Clad in dark grey flannels, with a khaki-colored cape thrown over his shoulders and wearing a brown snap-brim hat, the Chief Scout was all smiles as a battery of cameras continued on Page 6, Column 3.

DUTCH TANKER UNDER ARREST

Suspected of Espionage by Japanese When Sheltering in Fortified Bay

TOKIO, April 10 (AP).—Japanese dispatches from Taihoku, Formosa, said the Dutch tanker Juno, a vessel of 2,345 tons, was under escort of a Japanese destroyer en route to Takao for investigation under suspicion of espionage.

The circumstances of the case recalled the holding of the American tanker Elizabeth Kellogg recently because she ran aground in a militarized sea zone in Tokyo Bay. The Elizabeth Kellogg was released after investigation.

The Juno was caught in a typhoon April 7 and took refuge in a fortified bay in the Pescadore Islands, arousing the suspicions of the Japanese Navy.

Council May Dispossess Old Boatman

Henry Peachey, venerable boatman who has held sway in the old collection of boathouses in the Inner Harbor at the foot of the Imperial Oil station for twenty-five years, is in danger of losing his home.

Duncan K. Kennedy, city building inspector, has been ordered to survey the premises, which the City Council considers might well be removed.

The old boatman for years has been a familiar figure to visiting yachtsmen who often call for his services. He is a great lover of wild fowl and can often be seen feeding ducks and seagulls, which soon learn to eat out of his hand. His chief pet is a cat, which he said was born in 1917 and is still lively enough to catch an occasional rat.

CUSTOMS COLLECTIONS UP HALF A MILLION

VANCOUVER, April 9 (CP).—Customs collections at Vancouver for the year ending March 31 totaled $12,363,614 as compared with $11,826,338 for last year, an increase of $537,276, according to figures released today by Customs Collector Norman J. Degraeve.

This figure is the highest reached here since 1930, when collections reached an all-time high at more than $18,000,000.

Sir Walter Preston, M.P., Says Empire Can Benefit Through Closer Pacts

Confident that Imperial trade preferences will ultimately be the solution of the Empire's economic ills, Sir Walter Preston, M.P., told representatives of the press here yesterday, on the arrival of the Ss. Empress of Japan from Orient ports, that the manufacturers of the United Kingdom were realizing more and more each day what an important part the far-flung Dominions of the British Commonwealth can play in bringing it about.

"At home we are just beginning to appreciate what great opportunities there are for the development of a trading policy which would work to the advantage of all concerned," he stated.

"We understand more clearly now that if we expect to sell you in Canada more goods than you are buying at the present time, we must also buy more of what you have for sale or produce. In doing so we all must be willing to pay probably more for the product or article than foreign exporters would demand for a like product or article, for it is unthinkable to expect our own people at home or overseas to lower their standards of living in order to compete with low-priced manufactures such as some highly-industrialized countries are now sending into world markets.

ONE BRIGHT SPOT

"The Old Country is the one bright spot I have seen in coming around the world. We are enjoying what I call a 'bit of economic fair weather.' We've had a very strenuous time since 1929, but about six months ago, maybe a little before, things began to look a bit different. We are making decided progress for that statement."

WARNS BANKERS TO BE CAREFUL

Ontario Premier Uses Veiled Threat in Discussing Province's Credit.

TORONTO, April 9 (CP).—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, commenting today on the statement of Jackson Dods, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, that cancellation of power contracts caused the association to view the situation with "genuine alarm," said: "It will be just too bad for the bankers if they try any collusion to injure Ontario's credit. They can draw their own conclusion from that statement."

Premier Hepburn said bankers in the past "have been very fair to us, and I don't think they would be so foolish now as to try to hurt our credit."

COMMEMORATION ANTHEM SELECTED

Special Hymn for Jubilee Services Are Announced by Fund Committee

OTTAWA, April 9 (CP).—The management committee of the King George V Silver Jubilee Cancer Fund announced tonight the name of a special anthem composed by Dr. Ernest MacMillan for Jubilee services in Canadian churches is "The King Shall Rejoice in Thy Strength."

Dr. MacMillan, dean of the music faculty at the University of Toronto, has offered to waive his claim to royalties to the music until the cancer fund closes, May 6. The committee announced that entire proceeds of the music's sale will be devoted to the fund.

Montreal Maroons Crush Toronto Maple Leafs to Win Stanley Cup Series

Would Prevent Divorced Persons Selecting New Partners

OTTAWA, April 9 (CP).—A bill to prevent any person hereafter divorced in Canada from marrying again other than his or her former spouse today was given first reading in the Senate. The measure would cover divorces either by parliament or by the courts.

Liability under the Criminal Code for bigamy, which stipulates punishment by imprisonment up to a term of seven years on conviction for a first offence, is the penalty proposed for violation of the remarriage provisions. The penalty would apply to remarriages either in Canada or in the United States or other outside country.

The bill was introduced by Senator J. J. Hughes (Liberal, Prince Edward Island).

Home for B.C. Aged And New Sanitarium Under Consideration

Outfitting of Tubercular Institution at Coquitlam and Erection of New Building for Aged at New Westminster Await Necessary Funds

APPROXIMATELY $100,000 worth of building and renovation work is under contemplation by the Provincial Government in connection with the erection of a new home for the aged at New Westminster, and outfitting of a tubercular sanitarium at Coquitlam.

It is understood that the Province is considering constructing a one-story building on the grounds of the New Westminster Mental Hospital, though without connection with that institution, as a new provincial home for aged persons, 150 of whom would be accommodated in the building. A preliminary cost estimate is placed in the neighborhood of $82,000.

FIRE DISRUPTS COMMUNICATION

Telephones Put Out of Commission When Alberni Fuel Yard Burns

PORT ALBERNI, April 9.—A most spectacular fire, at an early hour this morning, completely destroyed the wood and coal yard operated by McBride & Son, and also several adjoining sheds which housed the small sawmill and gasoline tanks.

A new motor truck which had been stored in the building was completely destroyed. About 150 yards of telephone cable were burned, and telephone communication is completely disrupted. The whole of Alberni, Great Central Lake, Spoke Lake and a large part of this city being without telephone service.

Long-distance lines are burned out, cutting off the city from outside telephone communication. Telegraph service is being maintained.

Up to the present, no indication was given how the fire started.

Capture Historic Hockey Trophy in Three Straight Games

SCORE 4-1 VICTORY IN DECIDING FIXTURE

FORUM, MONTREAL, April 9 (CP).—The Stanley Cup returned to Montreal tonight on the crest of a 4-1 victory by Montreal Maroons in a fighting, brainy display of hockey that turned back Toronto Maple Leafs for the third successive year.

Marvin Wentworth was hailed as the hero of the series, and Manager Tommy Gorman as one of the greatest ice managers of all time. Maroons swept through the powerful Toronto squad in three straight games of a three-out-of-five series. A breakaway goal early in the third period was the finishing blow for the game Toronto squad.

Toronto's lightning thrusts by Charlie Conacher and Harvey Jackson, daring rushes by "Happy" Day and King Clancy, and power plays in which little Ken Doraty tried unavailingly to repeat his famed scoring plays of other years, fell before the Maroon defences.

HALIBUT BOARD PROPOSED NOW

Pacific Fleets Lost Lenten Trade, Passing March in Price Dispute

Halibut may follow salt herring into the realm of controlled marketing in British Columbia fishery products, if an application made by the Canadian halibut fleet at Prince Rupert for a regulation board is granted by Federal authorities now investigating at the scene. W. F. Chow, investigator for the economic branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, is now at the northern port in connection with the matter.

The halibut season both in American and Canadian waters got away to a poor start this year, a month being lost in dispute between the fishermen and fish handlers, many owning boats in the fleets. Fishermen asked a guaranteed price of from eight to ten cents per pound for the season. Operators said this could not be arranged. As a result of the dispute, though the season is now open, it is expected to be a poor one.

VANCOUVER, April 9 (CP).—Airport revenues during the first three months of this year in Vancouver were $1,510, compared with $1,339 in the same period of 1934. Manager William Templeton has reported to the civic airport committee. Gasoline sales have also increased from $952 in the first three months of last year to $1,284 this year.

Brings Suit for Damages When Hit By His Own Car

SEATTLE, April 9 (AP).—C. B. Blethen, Seattle Times publisher, today filed a $100,000 damage suit for injuries received February 5 when he was struck by his own automobile. He named the Metropolitan Building Company, the Metropolitan Auto Repair, Inc., and the Hotel Garage as operators of the garage in which the accident happened. The complaint stated that a garageman was driving the car when it struck Blethen's left leg.

POWER BILL NOT DELAYED

Second Reading Passed at Toronto in Face of Sharp Attack

TORONTO, April 9 (CP).—The Conservative filibuster against the Ontario Government's bill to cancel hydro power contracts with four Quebec companies ended suddenly late today when the Legislature voted second reading of the bill 42-15, and set up a record session of twenty-six and a half hours. With the power bill now destined for committee of the whole, the House reassembled at 8 o'clock to take up the budget debate and add more hours to the record.

BLOCKADE ENDED

The power bill blockade was terminated after an Opposition motion for six months' hiatus was lost, 37-15.

This amendment, by Wilfrid Heighington (Conservative, Toronto St. David's), was seen by parliamentary observers as a tactical move by the Opposition, with the expectation that Leader George S. Henry and other Conservatives would again enter the debate, discussing the amendment.

On the motion for the main question the Government was sustained 42-15. The bill was given second reading on the same division without taking an actual vote.

ADJOURNMENT IS FOR FIVE WEEKS

Government Votes Down Liberal Amendment Limiting Recess To One Week

OTTAWA, April 9 (CP).—The decks were cleared for a five-week Easter adjournment for Parliament when the House of Commons tonight defeated the Lapointe motion to limit the recess to one week. The vote was 90 to 49.

Picking up seven U.F.A.-Labor votes, the Government had a majority of 41 in turning back the motion, sponsored by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice, to limit the recess. Although it has been announced that Parliament will recess May 20, the Government has not indicated when the recess will start.

Gives House of Commons First Official Summary of Hitler's Demands for German Security—Briefly Reviews the Outcome of Anthony Eden's Visits to European Capitals

France and Soviet to Sign Accord for Common Action

LONDON, April 9.—Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, gave the House of Commons the first official summary of Germany's security views today as the British Government completed the outline of its Stresa conference proposals.

Hitler, Sir John told the Commons, wants:
1. Land and air arms equality.
2. A navy 35 per cent as large as Great Britain's, or about 400,000 tons.

NO EASTERN LOCARNO

3. A non-aggression pact among powers interested in European questions with provisions for consultations in case of aggression, but no "Eastern Locarno" nor mutual assistance pact with Russia.
4. No non-aggression pact including Lithuania until the status of the Memel Territory, former German possession now held by the Baltic country, is satisfactorily regulated.

5. A pact providing for non-interference in Austria only if the powers are able to agree on one satisfactory to Germany, which solves the difficulty of defining just what constitutes interference.

FULL PARTICIPATION

Great Britain's proposals for an all-inclusive security arrangement, which Sir John said Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald may present at Stresa on Thursday, will involve Britain's full participation as an active member, diplomatic circles understood, if France and Italy accept the plan.

Sir John, who with Prime Minister MacDonald will fly to Paris tomorrow and there entrain for Stresa, pledged himself not to commit the nation in any definite manner until Parliament has been consulted.

The Foreign Secretary's outline of the Russian, Polish and Czechoslovak views was brief. At Moscow, Eden learned that the Soviets consider the present situation has made it more than ever necessary "to endeavor to promote the building of a security system for Europe."

DIPLOMAT HELD AS GERMAN SPY

British Embassy Asks Italian Government to Investigate False Arrest

ROME, April 9 (AP).—An authoritative source said tonight the British Embassy had asked the Italian Government to investigate the arrest and imprisonment for two days of Hugh Montgomery, first secretary of the British Legation to the Holy See, and nephew of Sir Archibald Montgomery-Massingberd, chief of the British Imperial General Staff.

Italian police were said to have mistaken Montgomery for a German spy and to have seized him while he was making a bicycle tour in Southern Italy near Nola, where two Germans recently were arrested and charged with spying on Italian troop movements.

Despite the fact that his papers and credentials as a diplomat were in order, Montgomery was declared to have been held incommunicado two days before being released with profuse apologies.

NEARING CRUCIAL POINT OF MATCH

Sims Couple Cut Down Long Margin Held by Culbertsons in Contract Marathon

NEW YORK, April 9 (AP).—With nerves more than ever on edge as the Culbertson-Sims 150-rubber bridge match approached its crucial day the team of Mr. and Mrs. Sims succeeded at tonight's session in paring down the almost hopeless Culbertson lead by 1,580 points.

But the Culbertson lead at the end of the 122nd rubber is still 12,700, a terrific margin for the Simses to overcome and pass in the remaining twenty-eight rubbers of play.

Thus, tomorrow should assuredly be the crucial day, for if the team of Sims fails then to bring that margin down well within reach, its hope of success by the Friday night finale will be slim indeed.

Accomplish Little From Pooling by Canada's Railways

Chairman of Canadian National Trustees Says Arrangements Satisfactory in a Way—Co-operation Good as Amalgamation for Economy

OTTAWA, April 9 (CP).—Hon. C. P. Fullerton, chairman of the Canadian National Trustees, told the House railways committee today that the pooling arrangements between the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific were "satisfactory in a way." He admitted, however, that generally speaking, "very little had been accomplished." In 1933 a saving of $1,000,000 had been effected, but last year the saving was about $400,000.

"We would have liked to see the pooling system extended," said the chairman. "When we pooled trains from Quebec to Toronto we expected an extension as far West as the Detroit River." This expectation was not realized because the Canadian Pacific Railway "did not want to break its Michigan connection."

"We are still working to get a modified pooling agreement," the chairman added.

S. W. Fairweather, an official of the Canadian National Railways and chairman of that system's committee, which seeks to expand co-operation with the Canadian Pacific Railway, told the committee that "no co-operation or amalgamation

PRESENT PLEA TO GOVERNOR

Relief Camp Striker Has Interview With Earl of Bessborough

VANCOUVER, April 9 (CP).—Relief camp strikers in Vancouver today sent a representative to interview the Earl of Bessborough, staged a mass meeting at Cambie Street grounds, then in a column, 5,000 strong, marched quietly to the City Hall, where a delegation interviewed Deputy-Mayor C. E. Tisdall, with requests for immediate relief.

For some ten minutes the perfectly-tailored peer and a collarless, sweater-clad relief camper paced the platform of the Canadian National Railways, where the Governor-General's private car is stationed. While the striker described the lot of some 1,200 men who have walked out of camps in protest against alleged "unfair conditions," and have been refused relief here by the city and the Provincial Government, the Earl listened, at times dropping his arm across the shoulders of the camp representative.

Gun Factories Running Full Blast

The scene is the Washington Navy Yard gun shops, where most of the United States Navy's ordnance is manufactured, and an expert is shown examining the bore of a big gun, to determine if it is true to specifications. The gun shops in Washington are now running full blast, with 8,000 workers employed and a number of new guns are being manufactured, including a so-called mystery five-inch rifle, plans of which are being closely guarded.

C.P.R. Head Declares Public Ownership Is Not Proven by C.N.R.

E. W. Beatty Says Economic Structure of National Road Is Not Sound—Gives Warning Against Continued Political Carelessness

TORONTO, April 9.—Contending that the Canadian National Railways' structure, viewed in the light of social and economic progress was neither practicable nor the result of mature and informed thought, and could not meet the prudent tests which hard and unpleasant facts have proved must be applied to all social and economic ventures, E. W. Beatty, K.C., L.L.D., chairman and president, Canadian Pacific Railway, emphatically informed a luncheon meeting attended by more than 1,000 members of the Board of Trade, service clubs and representative citizens from all walks of the city's industrial and commercial life, here today, that "by every test I can apply the Canadian National Railways cannot be regarded as an honest experiment in public ownership," and were "nothing more or less than a sad accident."

Declaring his sincere opinion that the Grand Trunk Pacific were it would be "a poor citizen who would let his voice be stifled by the fear of ridicule or of reprisals," Mr. Beatty presented a searching analysis of the Canadian railway situation, and a spirited recapitulation of his own proposals for the unification of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National for operating purposes.

Broadly basing his argument on his approval of the social changes now in the making, he urged the obvious necessity of a sound financial foundation, and said: "We can go a long way farther than we ever have in the direction of providing greater social justice."

MORE BURDENS
"This means additional burdens on the shoulders of industry and additional calls on the purse of the state, and that makes it imperative to close all existing leaks and to revise or reverse all national policies which have been leading us into debt."

There were certain tests, he said, which should be applied to suggested changes in our social and economic life. Was the suggestion made on mature and informed thought? Was it certain to accomplish the ends intended? Was it to be preceded by definite consultation of public opinion? Would we be guided by experience? Would the plan be economically practical? These tests satisfactorily answered, we should proceed with the suggested change. That, he said, was his economic philosophy.

Canada's adventure in public ownership could not conform to these tests, and Mr. Beatty felt that after a life time of study of the subject, that the best service he could render Canada was to aid in the solution of this, its most difficult problem, which statesmen admitted "threatens our national solvency."

"I have suggested a plan which I think would bring substantial relief to the public treasury," he said. "Others may be able to suggest a better. If so they should come forward and I will be glad to join with them in working out the solution. In the meantime, the railway problem threatens the solvency and taking the least gloomy view possible. If left unsettled it will make it exceedingly difficult for the country to finance those measures which we agree are necessary for the rebuilding of the confidence and morale of our people."

POOR SERVICE
"I do not deny the possibility of public ownership of public utilities being established on sound and satisfactory lines. I believe, however, that there could be no worse service to the cause of public ownership than to gloss over its failures or hide the fact that they may do permanent damage to the economic structure of the nation."

The Canadian National was not constructed because of public faith in public ownership, he went on. The Grand Trunk Pacific was built by Sir Wilfrid Laurier at public expense solely because the Grand Trunk would not accept the burden as "a common railway highway" and to be leased to the Grand Trunk. The Intercolonial was built at public expense because private capital could not be induced to construct an economically impractical railway for military and political reasons. The motive behind the unwise expansion of railway mileage was never faith in public ownership. "From the day when the first sod was turned for the construction of the original Mackenzie & Mann line in Manitoba down to the time when the bankrupt Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk

Coal Commission's Counsel Asks That Colliery Official Be Brought Out

NANAIMO, April 9 (CP).—Evidence at this afternoon's hearing of the coal commission showed that $104,000 of "A" debenture stock of the Western Fuel Co. had been transferred to Wellex Securities, Ltd. It also showed that this company is being paid interest on approximately $750,000 of "A" debenture stock on the Canadian Collieries.

MORE THAN A DAY
"We've done a great deal more than we've been called upon today," declared A. Bruce Robertson, Collieries' counsel, in protesting C. H. O'Halloran's demand for a list of the shareholders on Canadian Collieries "A" and "B" debenture stock, and a list of bondholders on the W.F. Co. He pointed out that there were over 1,200 names to each list, and that it would entail great difficulty for these to be prepared in the London office. After considerable discussion, His Lordship suggested that the two lawyers discuss the question further tonight, and, if necessary, he will give a ruling tomorrow.

Further information of the Wellington Comox Agency and Pacific Shipping & Fuel Company, was divulged. By purchasing one-quarter of the latter's stock, it became sole agent in Washington and Oregon for Canadian Collieries' stock.

COST IN DETAIL
Mine costs at No. 1 Mine were given in detail by Patrick Pagan and preparations were made to detail other costs at tomorrow's hearing, before adjournment was called.

The highlight of today's hearing was commission counsel's request that an official of the Wellex Securities, Limited, Montreal, be brought to testify about the company which has played such a prominent part in the hearing. Mr. Robertson stated that it was a common practice, when His Lordship commented upon the Canadian Collieries being located here and their business office in Montreal and London.

"Yes, it may be too common," declared Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald.

GRANT TO EXCHANGE

D. A. Macdonald, city comptroller and treasurer, has been instructed to pay the Central Exchange $800 on account. The City Council plans to grant another $300, providing Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich Municipalities make contributions.

Uncover Ring for Racketeering in U.S. Immigration

Gangsters, Crooked Lawyers and Service Employees Included in Charges at New York—Startling Revelations Are Expected as Investigation Proceeds—Cases Ready for Jury

WASHINGTON, April 9 (AP).—Uncovering of a ring of immigration racketeers in New York and appointment of a special United States attorney to prosecute them was announced tonight by the Labor Department.

Department officials said gangsters, crooked lawyers and immigration service employees were included in the long list of those who had squeezed more than $1,000,000 out of illegally entered aliens in the last ten years.

"Revelations so startling in character have come to light that investigators believe that the actual extent of corruption and fraud has been but partially disclosed," Daniel W. McCormack, Commissioner of Immigration said.

Samuel H. Kaufman, New York lawyer appointed by Attorney-General Cummings to conduct the prosecutions, is to start on twenty-five cases the department said were ready for the grand jury.

Other results expected from the immigration service's fifteen-month secret investigation are:

Deportation of forty-two aliens arrested for unlawful residence in this country.

Institution of 200 proceedings to cancel fraudulent citizenships.

Dismissal of a number of immigration service employees.

Succumbs When Digging in Garden

NANAIMO, April 9.—Robert Wright, well-known resident of South Wellington, died suddenly at his home in the district today, having collapsed while digging in his garden. Deceased was born in England seventy years ago, and settled in South Wellington in 1910. He is survived by his widow; one son, Nicholas Wright, Nanaimo, and one daughter, Mrs. Temple Lawrence, South Wellington.

The funeral services will take place at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday from Jenkins' Chapel, interment in Nanaimo Cemetery.

ABBOTSFORD, B.C., April 9 (CP).—Two houses owned by James Rooney and one owned by John A. Campbell were completely destroyed by fire early today. Total damage was estimated at $5,000.

Candidates for Queen

MISS JEANNE OSGOOD

MISS JEAN GRAY

Above are two more of the contestants in the May 24 celebration May Queen contest. Miss Osgood is representing the Blue Line, and Miss Gray the Esplanade Club of Saanich. Yesterday, Miss Osgood took the lead over all other candidates with 7,000 votes. Interest in the voting is becoming more intense as campaign managers complete organizing their vote-selling staffs.

Key Men Named In Campaign for Tourist Capital

ALDERMAN T. W. Hawkins, Trustee W. T. Strath, E. G. Rowbottom, deputy Minister of Industries, and Frank Partridge, director of the Chamber of Commerce, have been appointed division leaders, or key men, for the big campaign to be inaugurated soon to raise funds for the Victoria and Island Tourist Trade Development Association. It was announced yesterday.

The campaign will start on April 29, and preparations are now being made to thoroughly canvass all those who are behind the movement and to enlist more to the support of the enterprise.

The Scotch representative in the May queen contest, Miss Lillian Grant, and Master Gerald Elliott, described by Mr. Smith as his assistant campaign manager, danced the Highland fling.

At the conclusion of the entertainment, ladies of the club served refreshments.

Miss Jeanne Osgood, representing the Blue Line in the May 24 celebration queen contest, moved into the lead yesterday, when her supporters turned in sufficient votes to give her a 1,000-vote lead over Miss "Pat" Petherbridge, of the Home Oil Company, and Miss May Clarke, representing the Eagles, who are tied for second place.

A total of 7,000 votes were secured by Miss Osgood up to late yesterday afternoon, while Miss Petherbridge and Miss Clarke had 6,000 votes. Miss Clarke was leading up to 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

RAGE OF ELEMENTS DOES BIG DAMAGE

Continued from Page 1 answered by light snow, sleet and showers, although the rain passed the most arid region of the state and was insufficient in other areas.

CALIFORNIA FLOODS

California counted more than a dozen flood dead after record-smashing rains. The storm also had a tragic corollary in the deaths of ten section hands, who were killed by a gravel train near Roseville while en route to repair a railroad slide. Homes, farms, stores, crops, highways and railways were damaged, especially in the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys. Rising water drove 100 persons from river-bottom camps at Marysville. From three to five feet of water surged into the Merced business section. Boats and wagons were pressed into rescue service.

MORE FLOODS FEARED

New flood fears cropped up in Northern Mississippi and Louisiana, where twenty-nine persons died and much property damage resulted from a week-end tornado. The Coldwater, Tallahatchie and Yazoo Rivers were raised by heavy precipitation. Lowland was inundated anew. The Red Cross issued an appeal for $50,000 for relief needs in Amite County, Mississippi.

Two rivers went over their banks in Kentucky, leaving more than 100 families homeless. The Wabash River rose again in Illinois.

B.C. Varsity Heads Favorable to Idea Of Seats in House

President Klinck Thinks That Representation Should Be Limited to Provincial Legislatures as Dominion Is Not Factor in Educational Field

VANCOUVER, April 9 (CP).—The principle of Canadian universities having governmental representation was approved by heads of the University of British Columbia tonight, but they were inclined to the view that the representation should be in the Legislative Assemblies, not the Dominion Parliament. The suggestion was advanced in a House of Commons debate that universities should be allocated seats.

President L. S. Klinck believed the proposal too far-reaching for individual comment until the matter had been gone into thoroughly.

REQUIRES STUDYING

"I think it should be considered by the properly-constituted bodies of the various universities, their university conferences," he said.

"While the idea seems to be a sound one," he added, "it would have to be gone into thoroughly. At present the Dominion Government is not active in education where the universities are concerned, the matter being under control of the various provincial governments."

Dr. R. E. McKechnie, chancellor of the university, approved governmental representation, but believed it should be in the Provincial Legislature, which controlled education in the province.

BILLIARD EXPERT ASSAULTED

SEATTLE, April 9 (AP).—Accused of an unprovoked attack on Robert Lindbloom, 1931 world champion pocket billiard player and now the Northwest champion, two men were jailed by police tonight. They gave their names as Robert D. Zimmerman, twenty-four, and Ted Patrick, thirty-five, when jailed as drunk and disorderly.

ENDORSE CUTTING MORTGAGE RATES

Banking Committee Recommends Limiting Interest on Farm Lands Loans

OTTAWA, April 9 (CP).—The banking and commerce committee today voted to recommend to the House of Commons that all interest rates on existing mortgages on farm lands be limited to 6 per cent. Rates now prevail in Western Canada as high as 8 per cent and in other parts of Canada as high as 7 per cent.

The arbitrary fixing of interest rates was opposed by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance. He particularly opposed a motion to limit all mortgage rates to 5 per cent. He contended it would have the exactly opposite effect to that sought. Several provinces in Canada could not borrow for less than 5 per cent, and to fix the mortgage

THE DAIRY INDUSTRY

CANADIAN NICKEL IN WORLD INDUSTRY

WHEN HEALTH DEPENDS ON PURITY

NICKEL DEVELOPS INCONEL—A NEW ALLOY TO GUARD THE PURITY OF MILK

A GLASS OF MILK! How intimately it is associated with health, from childhood to old age! And what confidence you have in its purity! Seldom do you stop to think of the infinite care taken by modern dairies to keep it uncontaminated.

For while milk is mild and easily digested, it has a highly corrosive action on metal. The various types of containers in which milk is pasteurized and cooled, and transported from the farm to the dairy, and from the dairy to your doorstep, should be made of a material unaffected by the lactic acid which all milk contains.

About three years ago our research division undertook to develop a Nickel alloy to meet this need. After countless experiments and disappointments, a metal of unusual physical qualities was produced which withstood all tests and was pronounced completely satisfactory. This metal was named Inconel.

Today, Inconel is being used in rapidly increasing quantities to protect the purity of milk in the dairy industry throughout the world. Naturally a metal of such outstanding physical qualities is also being put to many uses in other industries, resulting in a rapidly growing volume of sales.

We are proud to point to this metallurgical achievement as an example of the constructive work being carried on by our research division, which is constantly endeavouring, not only to find new uses for Nickel and its alloys in every branch of industry, but also to render service in meeting human needs.

ECONOMY IS ONLY SOLUTION

Dr. Manion, the Minister of Railways, says that the "only possible solution for the railway situation is a revival of world business and world trade, and we have no control over that." If the history of state-ownership of railways is any criterion, good times did not provide the solution of the deficits accumulated by the Canadian National Railways. What happened was that in a prosperous era state ownership indulged in the belief that it existed for competitive purpose. Its administration spent money lavishly in duplicating services. Indebtedness accumulated and deficits rolled up much the same as in times of depression, and economy was never the watchword of the time.

One of the best studies of state ownership of railways, with particular reference to the Canadian National system, has been prepared by Professor Leslie T. Fournier, of Princeton University. He has examined the operating results and the financial and other problems of the state-owned system in this Dominion. He says: "Looking back over the period of government ownership, it appears that most of the fears of Mr. A. H. Smith, the dissenting Royal Commissioner in 1916, regarding his colleagues' plan, have been substantiated. He did not believe that it would be possible to avoid the danger that the Government system would become a permanent burden, adding very largely to Government expenses. This, in fact, has been the result." Professor Fournier is persuaded that most of the huge investment of the Government in the C.N.R. will never be recovered. The Dominion has spent nearly $704,000,000 for both capital outlays and deficits, and there is, as well, a sum of $417,390,941 of unpaid accrued interest, and these figures do not include guarantees of securities issued by the system or its component parts. At the end of 1933 these guarantees amounted to $963,993,000 out of a total of $1,355,302,000 representing securities outstanding in the hands of the public. The average interest on the securities mentioned amounts to $36,465,427, whereas, says Professor Fournier, the average net earnings of the Canadian National available for interest in the eleven years, 1923-1933, amounted to $19,928,107. The writer, in commenting on this, says:

"Even on the assumption that the Canadian National could succeed in doubling its average annual net income of the past eleven years it would still fall short of meeting its fixed charges (due to the public) by $16,000,000 or more annually. . . . The conclusion inevitably follows that unless drastic measures are taken for a more economical operation of its railways, the Government cannot expect to be relieved of the burden of meeting continued deficits. Nor can it hope to secure a return on its large investment in the system. Moreover, since a large proportion of the Government's outlay for interest charges on railway accounts must be met from fresh borrowings, resulting in ever-increasing pyramiding due to compounding of interest, the situation becomes yearly more acute. . . . Yet, if the standards of service are to be preserved, and if the burden of cost on the taxpayer from the deficits of the Canadian is to be reduced, there must be cessation of competitive railway operation in Canada."

THE PARLOR BOLSHIEVIST

There appeared a little over two years ago in one of the more pretentious American magazines an article entitled "Why Do We Not Behave Like Human Beings?" The purpose of the article was to make it appear that the great mass of people in all lands is hopelessly incapable of real progress and that democratic government is necessarily a failure and a sham. Apparently this article attracted little attention, for now the subject is brought forward again, this time in the April Atlantic by another writer who rebukes and reproaches the scientific world, and particularly the anthropologists and psychologists, for their inattention.

He repeats the argument of the earlier essayist and adds extensive comment which may be briefly summarized. Those who are still searching for the Missing Link, the bond of union between man and his pre-human ancestors, are, he thinks, on the wrong track. They are thinking only of physical structure and function, not of intellectual powers. In other words, the most important missing link is not to be sought in the narrow gap in the physical series between the anthropoids and man, but in the wider gap in the mental and physical series between the Neolithic race which still overpreads the earth in immense numbers and the comparatively small minority which, owing to the possession of true psychic qualities, constitutes the authentic human type.

If these are the true facts of the case, to what inferential result do they lead? Surely to the conclusion that the vast majority of mankind is unable to form right judgments in the matter of government, and that the tasks of government belong to the tiny minority. Both of the essayists paint a very gloomy picture. One of them thinks that political democracy with its "plausible devices and panaceas" has utterly failed. The other accepts this view and admits that the democracy has made a mess of things. He entertains, however, a faint hope that the "Neolithic mass" may be "psychically improvable."

Doctrines like the above are merely another indication that the cherished ambition of the professional revolutionist is the ultimate establishment of a tyrannical oligarchy, which, after the revolutionary storm has spent itself, will gather the reins of power into its own capable and ruthless hands. The methods and devices, the professional bag of tricks employed by revolutionary agitators in their search for recruits, vary with the type of mentality of their prospective converts, their temperament, their stage of culture, their background of scientific knowledge.

One orator is strong in the art of denouncing the existing system. Another melts in pathos. A third ostentatiously professes a love of logic and sweet reasonableness. The "highbrows" and parlor Bolshievists, the Socialists and pseudo-scientists are to be approached in a different manner. The plan of the revolutionary agitator is to prepare the minds of all of them for the overthrow of democratic government and the triumph of an oligarchy composed of the natural and predestined rulers of the moronic Neolithic mass. Radicals are usually vague and indefinite as to the means by which they hope to reorganize our economic and political affairs, but their aims and purposes are sometimes, as in this instance, set forth with an engaging frankness.

HARE-BRAINED POLICIES

Mr. J. S. Woodsworth, who has won the reputation of being the most loquacious member of Parliament, is brimful of theories for the betterment of humanity. Like all the exponents of his Socialistic creed, he believes in spendthrift zeal and lavish taxation. His latest proposal in the latter realm is the imposition of a tax of $100,000 on an income of $200,000. Like many Socialists, he does not see further than his nose, and in this instance he never took the trouble to look a year or two ahead. Those who enjoy large incomes only enjoy them because of productive capacity in some direction or other. If the results of that productive capacity are conscripted, then the incentive for the exercise of the capacity will grow dim and perhaps cease altogether. Mr. Woodsworth proposes a policy which would dry up the fountains of wealth.

The explanation is simple. In the case of an income of $200,000 it is not spent in riotous living in the vast majority of cases. The money is not put in the bank. A considerable proportion of it is invested in stocks and bonds and other securities. The investment promotes enterprises, creates employment, pays wages and increases purchasing power. It is thus working through the years. If the state got eighty per cent of it, that eighty per cent would be spent in the one year in which it was levied as taxation. It would disappear often enough on spendthrift and unnecessary schemes. Most assuredly the individual having the income of $200,000, of which $160,000 would be conscripted, would not bother to have a similarly large income in the succeeding year. Why should he? He would be better off with an income considerably smaller. Mr. Woodsworth must think that incomes are fixed things and, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, cannot be altered. There is nothing that can decline so fast as income from productive sources. Mr. Woodsworth's policy is one calculated to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

"SIREN CHORUS"

Troop home to silent grots and caves,
Troop home and mimic as you go
The mournful wailing of the waves,
Which to their dark abysses flow.

At this sweet hour all things beside
In amorous pairs to covert creep;
The swans that brush the evening tide
Homewards in snowy couples keep.

In his green den the murmuring seal
Close by his sleek companion lies,
While singly we to bedward steal,
And close in fruitless sleep our eyes.

In bowers of love men take their rest,
In loveless bowers we sigh alone;
With bosom friends are others best,
But we have none—but we have none.

—George Darley (1905-1846).

The white mist shows the peaks

Separate; as though last night
They moved apart, and pausing now
Exchange slow stare for stare.
Like grey old men, with ragged shawls tight drawn.

What oft was thought, but ne'er so well expressed.

In small proportion we just beauties see,
And in short measures life may perfect be.

Note and Comment

By E. R. D.

An error is the more dangerous in proportion to the degree of truth which it contains.—Amaul.

We see many things in the papers these sunny mornings, bright and cheerful mornings notwithstanding the late Spring, which remind us of the demand of the French Revolutionists for Liberty and Equality, with Fraternity tacked on to the end of the slogan as a sort of grace note. Liberty was established, which speedily became license. Equality was attained through a free use of the guillotine. Fraternity was intended to be applicable to the whole of the world, but it appears to us to be still merely a pious aspiration, which, if it has been established at all, is limited strictly to the French nation. According to some of the things we see in the papers, Fraternity is again an international aspiration, an aspiration for the brotherhood of man and international free trade.

If you read the papers as diligently as we do, you will notice that professors and amateurs of economics are daily proclaiming what they believe a fundamental business truth that depression must be the portion of us all until the fetters are stricken from international trade and commerce becomes as free as spiritual salvation. Historically the Liberal Party of Canada and the Democratic Party of the United States have proclaimed the principles of free trade, but in fact of absolute free trade. In the United States the Democrats have held power at intervals, but they have never applied the principles of free or absolutely free trade.

Governments in Canada have changed. Liberal governments have displaced Conservative governments, but tariffs have been maintained or increased. Reciprocity treaties have been negotiated, and in at least one case adopted, lowering some of the trade barriers, but ultimately intensifying the demand for higher protection and deepening the gulf separating the industrial interests of the two nations.

The rhetoricians are constantly telling us that the people of two nations living side by side in perfect harmony, speaking a common language and cherishing similar ideals, should not submit to being kept apart by arbitrary barriers to trade, commerce and industry. This is all very fine and nearly convincing in theory, but the thesis happens to be confounded by experience and fact. Free trade implies the free competition, and the resources of the two nations and the business activities of the people of the two nations are so nearly identical or common, like their language and their ideals, that nearly all the products of the two nations are competitive, with the result that there are irresistible demands upon politicians as distinguished from statesmen for protection from foreign competition. The situation as between Canada and the United States is the situation throughout all the world. There are lions in the path of reciprocity and there are obstacles to international free trade.

These are facts as distinguished from theories. What are we going to do about them? The United States of Canada and the United States of America had ideas of doing something about them when they opened negotiation for the adoption of a new and improved reciprocity treaty. That movement seems to have come to naught like the movement for the opening of a new international railway along the whole length of the St. Lawrence River. It is a simple matter to endorse the principles of many things; it is a complex matter when it comes to accepting the details of such things, when the practical politicians begin to consider the effects of the proposals upon the sentiments or the prejudices upon their constituents. Amendments have been made to the original railway treaty which have practically killed it. The death has created relief instead of provoking resentment in Canada. The prominence of the death of reciprocity will be a blow to the hopes of some Canadians, but such things have happened before, and the business of Canada has survived.

The Liberalism of Canada and the democracy of the United States have one thing in common. That particular thing, it is interesting to note, is hostility to Imperial Preference. The Leader of the Liberal Party has declared that if and when his party comes into power it will annul the Ottawa trade agreements. It is true Mr. King has modified that statement by declaring that in the light of the effect upon Canadian trade of the agreements he will merely amend and modify them. The Democratic Government also has amended its policies. Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, at one time demanded freer international trade as the one thing which would lift the world depression, arguing that the general eral depression was the primary cause of the United States depression. The President checked his Secretary of State once. He has checked him again. The Democratic policy is no longer freer trade. It is equality of trade. The meaning of equality of trade has been defined by an official of the Western United States Lumbermen's Association, and this definition is of some significance to the lumbermen of British Columbia. If you are interested in the lumber business, you will remember that the United States Lumber Association demanded as a condition precedent to the acceptance of a reciprocity treaty between Canada and the United States that the Ottawa agreements as they affected lumber should be annulled and that the timber products of the American Pacific Coast should be admitted free to British markets. The following are the figures submitted for consideration of Washington:

"West Coast lumber is a good example of discrimination in world trade," said Col. W. B. Greeley, secretary-manager of the association. "In 1929 mills in Western Oregon and Washington shipped 361,900,000 feet of Douglas fir and West Coast hemlock lumber to countries with free trade in the British Empire. British Columbia mills shipped these same countries that year 120,541,000 feet. "In 1934, two years after the British Empire trade pact had been signed, which permitted preferential tariff between these countries, the West Coast American mills sold all Empire countries a total of 81,442,000 feet of lumber, while British Columbia mills sold them 769,841,000 feet. "Our share in 1934 was less than one-ninth, while, without discrimination, in 1929, it had been one-third."

MINERS FLYING TO NEW STRIKE

First Party Goes by Air to McDame's Creek Area Seeking Claims

Claims staked at the head of McDame's Creek, scene of a rich gold strike last August, now total 300, it is reported from Telegraph Creek in Northern British Columbia. The first plane left Telegraph Creek for the new field with a party of prospectors on March 29. Several other parties assembled there will be moving in this month, and the Spring thaw is expected to be accompanied by unprecedented mining activity. The Stikine River opens for navigation about the middle of May, the Dease River being some two weeks later, but ground conditions will be suitable for development work at a much earlier date.

MINERALIZED ZONE
Considerable work has been done in the vicinity of Callison's discovery, revealing that the mineralized zone is much more extensive than at first believed. The subsequent locations differ from the discovery claims in that where these were identified with quartz stringers the new showings are on well-defined ore bodies. Some of these are twelve feet wide, averaging four to six feet. The ore is apparently a sulphide, carrying values from $12 to $50 a ton. Properly sampled, including traces and blanks, they averaged $11.25 per ton.

McDame's Creek itself carries no real gold values, the strike being on two small tributaries, Quartz and Snow Creeks, at its headwaters. The discovery was made by Lynch Colliery, a Seattle syndicate having taken an option on its claims, and was reported in Vancouver last November. At that time 100 claims had been staked.

NORMAL SEASONS ARE HOPED FOR

S. C. Burton, Regina, Says Last Winter More Like Old-Fashioned Ones on Prairies

The past Winter on the Prairies has been more like the old-fashioned ones than any experienced in recent years, and he hopes it is an indication of the country returning to normal seasons, with the five-year drought being ended, S. C. Burton, Regina, said in an interview at the Empress Hotel. Mr. Burton is receiver and manager of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries. Saskatchewan was badly hit by both the depression and low grain production, the visitor explained. In his own business, conditions were improving, however, he added. All Prairie provinces showed increases in 1934, last year, and his company, in 1934, made the largest quantity in its history. Last year, thirty car loads came to Regina, Mr. Burton said.

Accompanying Mr. Burton on his visit to Regina is Mrs. Burton. They left for the East yesterday.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of April 10, 1885.)

Defences—The work of putting the Beaton Hill batteries in fighting trim is proceeding with commendable rapidity. The Artillery Corps now attend compulsory drill and exertions are being put forth to render the small force effective. There is a large number of torpedoes at Esquimalt which will be sunk in appropriate place in the outer harbor in the case of hostilities, and one or more torpedo-boats will be got ready. The inactivity of the Imperial Government respecting this station is inexplicable in view of the threatening condition of affairs in Afghanistan. The warship Triumph cannot reach this station for two months yet, and it is not known if any other warships are on the way.

Minerals—John Morrison, who returned yesterday from a prospecting tour through the Peat-River Mountains, has some fine specimens of iron, copper and marble. He also has some quartz, supposed to contain gold and silver. He says that the mountains are full of mineral wealth and predicts a great future for the mining interests of the province.

Small Fire—The excitement of a chimney on fire at Mrs. Laid's residence, James Bay, called out the fire department and gathered a great crowd of citizens. The fire was extinguished in a few minutes, and the city resumed its normal condition.

Shovel on Your Coal—Full Steam Ahead!

It might be kind of hard for J. S. Taylor, Federal candidate of the C.C.F. in the Nanaimo riding, to justify his assertion that the capitalist system had totally failed. He said that in one phase of his address and in another referred to the wonderful progress in the world in the last fifty years or so. Under the Socialist scheme it would be even more progressive. It looks as if Mr. Taylor would have Canada have an election with the issue as the seat of government in the coal mines of Nanaimo, and a hot time ahead for everybody.—R.A.G.

A Buzz About Buzzards

When Gene Sarazen, noted American professional golfer, and well known in Victoria, dropped his second shot, a 220-yard spoon, at the fifteenth hole, a distance of 485 yards, during his last round in the Augusta Invitation tournament on Sunday, such a noted sports writer as Alan Gould, sent a short note to the wires and called the shot a "double eagle." Maybe that's true in the sense of the word, but Mr. Gould the right term in golf language is a "buzzard." A "buzzard" is a term used when a golfer beats par, a birdie and an eagle all in one stroke, in other words getting a two on a par five hole such as Sarazen did. The same thing happened at Colwood two years ago, when Harold Pretty holed out his spoon shot at the long fourteenth hole, 426 yards, as he practiced during the Empire Mid-Winter meet, beating Old Man Par by three strokes.—J.D.

A Mere Slip of the, Etc.

Dispatches received here during the past few days record the fact that Tokio, Japan, is subsiding gradually at the rate of anything from several inches to several feet per annum. This is a mere bagatelle, Green, in his "Short History of the English People," published by Harper & Bros. London and New York, in 1899, mentions that Nootka Sound at the end of the eighteenth century was in California (see p. 800). It is now part of the Coast of Vancouver Island. There are some phenomena which science has not yet been able to fathom.—J.E.M.B.

Why Not?

When the Federal Dairying Act comes to British Columbia, we suppose it would be alright to refer to it as just an-udder act.—R.A.G.

Nerts to Norman

Speaking at a ward Liberal meeting, Norman Whitaker, M.P.P. for Saanich, said "A great deal of political propaganda against the proposed Fraser River Bridge emanates from our opposition and from disgruntled engineers who thought they would get jobs to rebuild the old structure. A toll bridge is only a fair thing. If we use a bridge, why shouldn't we help pay for it? Toll bridges are not old-fashioned. Nearly all the big bridges in Eastern Canada and the United States collect tolls. Yes, Vancouver Island will help pay for the bridge to the extent of $1,000,000. There are three answers to Mr. Whitaker's Biah, sez you, or oh yeah?—G.B.

Reporter's Howl for Paradise

Who'll Foot the Bill?

The Mass Buying Committee at Ottawa is recommending "boards for that, and boards for this, and any old thing that's gone amiss." The would put in the things he should have said, but didn't, and leave out the things he had said, but shouldn't. What a reporter's paradise it would be.—R.A.G.

TO MAKE KNOWN HIGHWAY PLANS

George M. Murray, M.P.P., To Speak in Eastern Canada and United States

George M. Murray, M.P.P., Lillooet, spent Monday at the Parliament Buildings completing arrangements for an extended journey to Eastern Canada and the United States. He will deliver a series of lectures on the proposed British Columbia-Alaska Highway, at leading cities between Victoria and Montreal. He will later proceed to Washington, D.C.

"Proposed construction of the British Columbia-Alaska Highway has been approved by resolution of the British Columbia Legislature," the member for Lillooet said.

ACTION IS NEEDED
"All that is required is action by the Dominion Government to make possible this great project, which will give employment to thousands and open the hinterland between Hazelton, British Columbia, and the northern boundary. Construction of the highway will provide a tourist route, which will attract visitors from throughout the world."

"We are interested in the project in the Lillooet country because we are the historic outfitting point for the farther reaches of the Cariboo and the northland. Through Lytton, Ashcroft and other points in the Lillooet country will pass many of the travelers, who will use the Alaska Highway. Our business houses are supporting the project as the trade interests of Cariboo, Omineca, Skeena and Atlin," Mr. Murray declared.

APPRECIATION

Sir,—The ladies of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Royal Jubilee Hospital wish to express their gratitude for the wonderful response to their day appeal. We deeply appreciate all the help we have received from the press, Messrs. Hart & Oram, the Oak Bay Hardware, and all those who so kindly tagged for us, and the general public for its most generous contributions.

EVELYN C. PHETHEAN, President.

THE CURFEW LAW

Sir,—Cannot something be done for Victoria kiddies of tender years whose parents, for some unknown reason, allow their offspring to roam our streets nightly after 9 o'clock. Their health and morals should be our first consideration. Surely the parents would welcome my suggesting the curfew. Unfortunately we have in our midst some depraved human fiends. Protection would be welcomed much, in after years, would mean much. Delinquency on the increase to a marked degree. Immediate necessity for such a law was most forcibly impressed upon me of late, having noticed, night after night, young children congregating.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

PENALTY DOUBLES

The penalty double of a low adverse contract offers more profit possibilities than any other bidding situation. This is because of an apparently irresistible temptation to get into the bidding, no matter how unkind the overall, and it is true even of players whose long experience should have taught them better.

In expert games you will find this double used with great freedom and flexibility—and partaking of none of the "ands off, partner," involuntarily with which some players demand their business doubles be treated.

"CO-OPERATIVE" DOUBLING
Today's hand from the recent Grand National Championship of the United States Bridge Association shows the use of the penalty double at a low contract by Richard L. Frey, leading player of 1934, and an ardent advocate of "co-operative" doubling.

HISTORIC LORE
REVIEWED HEREBruce A. McKelvie Tells Kiwanians of Opportunities on Island

You cannot build a solid, substantial citizenship, develop racial pride, public spirit or community purpose unless it is based upon tradition. Bruce A. McKelvie, managing editor of The Colonist, told members of the Kiwanis Club at the Empress Hotel yesterday when he gave a talk on "Historic Romance."

"We all know California is the North American Mecca of the tourist today," said Mr. McKelvie. "The state built up an annual tourist trade of $600,000,000 with burning sunshine and stories of the romance of gold rush days, the pony express, old Spanish times and mining camp life. A glamor was created around the name of California by the writings of Bret Harte and Mark Twain."

The speaker dealt with romance of the Sandwich Islands, now Hawaiian Islands, and the times of Captain Cook and traders who opened up the territory.

"Hawaii with its sunshine and 150 yards of beach at Waikiki has built up an annual tourist business of $24,000,000," he declared.

ANCIENT RECORDS

Mr. McKelvie told of records of Vancouver Island in the year 499, when Romans were leaving Britain, compiled in China by Hsueh Shin, a Buddhist priest. Four burial mounds, of a kind mentioned by the old priest, existed at one time in Beacon Hill Park. He mentioned the Mitchell and Hepburn stones at Nanaimo, the reputed home of the mythical Indian-thunderbird-atom Mount Newton, and Indian petroglyphs along the Sooke shore as only a few examples of historic romance which could be capitalized into tourist assets.

He related the story of Don Pedro Alberni, who gained the confidence of Chief Maquinna at Nootka by composing a laudatory song in his honor. The song was lustily belted by eighty Dons on every possible occasion. He regretted that so little respect was paid to the memory of Sir James Douglas, one of the greatest men of his day. Sir James, it appeared, once saved the State of Washington from becoming Indian territory again by furnishing the entire United States garrison with ammunition, food and other necessities out of his own pocket.

G. H. Stevens tendered Mr. McKelvie a hearty vote of thanks on behalf of the Kiwanians.

WORLD CHIEF SCOUT
REACHES VICTORIA

men and newspaper reporters raced down the gangplank and up to the bridge to meet him and Lady Baden-Powell, who was dressed in a dark grey-blue suit.

His activeness in limb and mind belied his seventy-eight years of age as he spoke to newspapermen.

"I am glad to be back once more on Canadian soil and to join with the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides in celebrating the jubilee of the accession to the Throne of His Majesty the King," the Chief Scout said.

"Canada has given proof of her loyalty to the Throne by making so splendid a contribution to the King's cancer fund," he added. "Also, it has shown by its generous subscription, its appreciation of the Boy Scout movement in its effort to train the coming generation to be healthy, happy, and helpful men for the Dominion and good friends to other countries, and, therefore, powerful agents to peace in the world," he went on.

GLAD TO RETURN

His activeness in limb and mind belied his seventy-eight years of age as he spoke to newspapermen.

"I am glad to be back once more on Canadian soil and to join with the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides in celebrating the jubilee of the accession to the Throne of His Majesty the King," the Chief Scout said.

as contemplated by the Anglo-French communique of London and the principles of the League of Nations," he said.

RELATIONS TRANQUIL

At Warsaw, Poland's Foreign Minister, Joseph Beck, told Eden that Poland already had established "tranquil relations on two fronts and the question Poland was bound to ask herself was whether any new proposal would improve or trouble the good atmosphere established by those two agreements."

At Praha the European situation was reviewed briefly, Sir John said, Czechoslovak Foreign Minister Eduard Benes expressing the hope that success would attend efforts for an inclusive pact.

If an arms limitation agreement reached, Germany will work on an agreement providing for permanent automatic arms supervision, Sir John said he was told, but this supervision must be applied to all nations alike. Germany also is willing to enter the proposed Western Europe Air Alliance, Sir John said.

NOT AS INFERIOR

As to the League of Nations, the Commons was told, Hitler went back to his statement of May, 1933, that Germany would not participate in the League as an inferior, saying Germany would be inferior if she had no colonies.

In this connection, Prime Minister MacDonald told a questioner that Great Britain was not thinking of giving up any mandated territory, declaring Germany was under no misapprehensions in this regard.

HAS PRAISE FOR CITY

Sir Walter, who is typically and graciously John Bullish, and represents Cheltenham in the British House of Commons, is a prominent manufacturer and a director of the world-renowned financial institution, Midland Bank, and was very much taken with Victoria.

While the liner was alongside the dock here, and Lady Preston, drove around the city, and he stated it was just about the size of his constituency, 65,000 population, which is a residential riding, where retired navy, army and civil servants reside. Victoria appeared to have a bit more charm and had far more scenic attractions than Cheltenham. He could not pay Victoria a better compliment than that, he stated, for Cheltenham is a very lovely spot in itself.

Chief Guide Speaks Of Movement That Binds World's Youth

Lady Baden-Powell Addresses Big Women's Canadian Club Audience on Subject of Guiding and Scouting and Recent Tour

GUIDING and Scouting as great international peace agencies, which are building up a bond of world interest and world sympathy between the boys and girls, was the special aspect in which these great world movements were presented by Lady Baden-Powell, Chief Guide, in the inspiring address she gave before an unusually large gathering of Women's Canadian Club members at the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Just arrived from the Seattle boat and the enthusiastic reception which greeted her and her distinguished husband there, the Chief Guide still wore her "international" Guide uniform of blue-grey, and faced her audience with her characteristic radiant smile.

She declared she was delighted to be back in Victoria once more, recalling that it was about the same time of year when she was last here in 1923, and an indelible picture had lingered in her memory of the sunshine, daffodils and snow-capped mountains across the water.

From this point Lady Baden-Powell proceeded to tell the story of Scouting and Guiding from their inception down to the present time, when there are approximately two and a quarter million Scouts and more than 1,200,000 Girl Guides. In some detail she described the world tour on which she and Lord Baden-Powell are now engaged, having already traveled over 15,000 miles and visited a great many of the countries outside Britain where Scouts and Guides are organized.

A special reference was made to the big jamboree held recently in Australia in connection with the centenary celebrations, when 11,000 Scouts from forty-seven countries gave them a thrilling reception. They had missed Canada, which unfortunately was not represented.

FLOURISHING SISTERHOOD
Speaking at the end of her address more specifically of the Girl Guide movement, Lady Baden-Powell said that Victoria would hardly need to be told about the very fine organization British Columbia possessed under the leadership of Mrs. Alan Morkill. She also hoped that citizens recognized what an excellent influence it was for girls, for character building and for broadening the outlook, the sympathies and understanding, as well as the development of the practical as well as the idealistic side of the girls' nature.

"I have seen Guiding from the bottom, growing up, and now have seen it from the bird's-eye point of view, as something good and worth while in the lives of the girls who are to be the women of the future. We want to give to the future a legacy of fine womanhood, and if we see it this way, we will see in Guiding not only a movement of playing children, but a movement for the building up of a new generation for Canada and the Empire," she said.

HISTORY OF SCOUTING
In tracing the history of the Girl Guide and Boy Scout movement, Lady Baden-Powell recalled how her husband had first sensed the need of Scouting (for men) when he was a soldier in India. Later, during the Boer War, "which ought never to have happened," he created a little corps of messenger boys who were forerunners of the Boy Scouts of today. Returning to England, he came in contact with the Boys' Brigade, and sensed in the enthusiasm of this movement, the possibilities of a still bigger movement which would absorb a greater number of lads who had need of an anchor of care, sympathy and training. In Sir Arthur Pearson he had found a ready colleague.

The first experiments were eminently successful. The uniform proved a great attraction, breaking down any sense of class distinction, inspiring self-respect, and being accepted as a sign of service. The ranks were steadily strengthened, and a year after the movement was organized 11,000 responded to an advertisement issued by her husband to the effect that he would be glad to meet anyone interested in the idea.

CHILDREN CARRY ON
"My husband set the idea going; the children have done the rest themselves. It is they who have made the movement, together with the splendid people who are serving as scoutmasters and guides, and those others who are bearing the 'heat and burden of the day,' and doing such magnificent service for the children and for their country," said Lady Baden-Powell.

Not only the children of Britain, but the children of all countries the world over wanted this movement. Its place in meeting the needs of young people "born into a very complex age," was indicated by the speaker. Scouting and guiding had come into being because they were required as an influence, an anchor, something that could provide a code of honor, a new and wholesome influence, and provide

PREPARING SALADS AND VEGETABLES
Salads—May be prepared of any combination of raw lettuce, celery, raw tomato, grated raw carrot, chopped or shredded young cabbage, raw apples, ripe banana, or figs and dates. Salad dressing may be used if it does not contain mustard or vinegar.

Vegetables—Should be baked or steamed, although boiling is all right. They should never be fried. Wash all vegetables thoroughly. Better to scrub with brush under running water. Remove all superfluous tops, roots, tips or old skins, and also any wilted or decayed parts.

Steaming—Arrange vegetables in top section and fill lower section one-third full of water. Steam over the boiling water until soft, and sprinkle with a teaspoon of salt before removing from fire.

Baking—Place in a pan with a small amount of water, cover closely. Potatoes and squash may be baked in their skins in an open pan, for half an hour longer than is usual. Boiling—For the tender vegetables of mild flavor, such as carrots, potatoes, spinach and greens, marrow or celery, asparagus or string beans, use as little water as possible to keep from burning and cook covered. Endeavor to boil dry or save the water for soup. For the strongly-flavored ones, such as cabbage, onions, turnips and cauliflower, use sufficient water to cover and cook uncovered. Drain off water after cooking. Have water boiling when vegetables are put in, and cook until they are soft. Add the teaspoon of salt during the last few minutes of cooking.

Ganges Chapter
The regular, monthly meeting of the Ganges Chapter, I.O.D.E., took place at the home of Mrs. A. J. Eaton, the regent, Mrs. Desmond Crofton, in the chair. The treasurer's report showed a balance in hand of $40.38. In answer to the request that Queen Alexandra Rose Day be held, tagging was arranged to take place at the annual garden party. The funds derived from the sale of roses to go towards the Mary Croft bed at the Queen Alexandra Solarium, Mill Bay. The educational secretary, Mrs. Moorhouse, read a letter from Mrs. Dudley Gaitskill, principal of the Dawson Creek School, Peace River, who thanked the chapter for the generous gift of a library, which comprised three boxes of books with an additional box collected by members. Following the reading of correspondence regarding the special King's jubilee numbers of The Illustrated London News containing articles and photos referring to events of interest during the king's life and reign, it was decided to purchase a special copy for the Ganges High School to be passed on to other Salt Spring schools later. A case of a local schoolgirl suffering from defective eyesight and needing special treatment and glasses was brought to the notice of the members, the teacher having already collected a sum towards necessary treatment. A further amount was donated by the chapter. A sale of work and tea was arranged to be held on Tuesday, April 30, at the home of the secretary, Mrs. E. Walter, Ganges. The committee in charge will be Mrs. C. E. Baker, Mrs. Frank Crofton and Mrs. Cecil Springford. The regent, Mrs. Desmond Crofton, acting as delegate from the chapter, will attend the annual Provincial meeting in Vancouver. A year's subscription was paid by the chapter to the Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital to make a local resident a member of that institution. Two new members joined the chapter, Mrs. J. Mitchell and Mrs. Cross, of Ganges. Tea hostesses for the afternoon were

Appeal Is Made By Orphans' Home

The B.C. Protestant Orphans' Home will hold its annual shower tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at its Hillside premises. The financial stringency of the last few years has made the task of the committee a difficult one, and they earnestly hope that a generous response will meet this appeal on behalf of the children in their care. Gifts of money, linen or other supplies suitable for the home will be appreciated, and the home will be open for inspection. For the convenience of donors unable to visit the home tomorrow, baskets are being placed in Spencer's and the Hudson's Bay stores for the receipt of donations.

Gladys Glad On Beauty

The summer season may seem far away, but now is the time for Summer preparedness, especially with reference to reconditioning the elbows to make them attractive for the coming season.

Now is the time for every girl to give her elbows close inspection, for most women neglect their elbows all winter, because they are hidden beneath long sleeves. Short sleeves and sleeveless frocks are all included in the new Summer styles, and a pair of rusty looking elbows will detract from even the smartest of these frocks.

If your elbows have become sharp and scrawny looking, start pronto to practice corrective exercises. There are some excellent exercises for shaping the arms and elbows in my "New Figure" booklet. And in addition to exercising, massage your elbows nightly with warmed cocoa butter, in order to nourish the tissues and round out the contours.

DIFFERENT PROCEDURE
If your elbows have become dark, rough and rusty looking, a different procedure is necessary. When taking your bath each night, scrub your elbow briskly with a bland soap, using a small flesh brush. Then apply a bit of plain lemon juice or peroxide to each elbow, and permit the chosen bleach to dry on the skin, so that it may remove any discolorations.

After the bleaching, apply a generous quantity of nourishing cream to each elbow, massage it well into the skin and permit it to remain overnight. Or, if you prefer, you may, instead, loosely wrap a bit of gauze soaked in warm olive oil around each elbow. Either method of lubrication will remove any roughness, and will make the elbows alluringly soft and smooth.

MARIGOLD PARTY

Another popular card party was held recently in the Marigold Hall by the Ward Four Saanich C.C.F. Seven tables of five hundred were in progress and Mr. J. Hall acted as master of ceremonies. Prizes were won by: First lady, Mrs. M. Goldie; first gentleman, Mr. T. Nelson; second lady, Mrs. F. Gorton; second gentleman, Mr. J. Goldie; consolation, Mrs. T. Hooper and Mr. G. S. Mitchell. A prize was awarded to Mrs. T. Youell for being the youngest married lady present. Refreshments were served at the close of the game, hostesses for the evening being Mesdames Goldie, Gorton, Hooper and Miss B. Hancock.

First Birthday Party of Dr. Davies' Ministry Will Be Held Tuesday
Due to such an overwhelming response to the invitation to the membership of Dr. Glen Davies' ministry to the first birthday party celebrating the inauguration of the services commenced on April 15 last, it has been necessary to cancel the engagement of a downtown social hall for the more commodious Chamber of Commerce.

The birthday party festivities will be held on Tuesday next at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium and side rooms, and Dr. Davies is extending an invitation to his friends to attend that evening. Upwards of 600 have already signified their intention of being present. This will be essentially a birthday celebration with all its attendant fun and jollity and, with a spirit of thanksgiving, according to Dr. Davies, a good programme is being prepared, and refreshments will be served.

RELIEF ROLLS ARE REDUCED

City Council Will Ask Government to Shoulder
Greater Portion

A decrease of 1.7 per cent in the number of families on relief in Victoria was noted in a report presented by E. G. Snowden, relief officer, to the City Council, Monday night. In February, 1934, there were 1,003 families on relief. Last February the number was 986. Relief costs were $25,623 in February, 1934, and $25,556 during the corresponding month this year.

Cost of direct relief from February, 1934, to January, 1935, was $90,094.86, percentage of monthly claims: $35,138.10, city charges; $5,784.41, reduction to Government scale; a total of $137,017.37. Costs of social services during the same period were: Mental hospital, $32,407; mothers' pensions, $14,068.62; Boys' Industrial School, $2,430.40; Girls' Industrial School, $1,831.20; garbage cans, $240, and drugs, $4,459.62, a total of $55,236.84.

"SIGN OF WEAKNESS"
Alderman Dewar asserted that the Government did not hesitate to try and place the care of relief camp strikers upon the shoulders of the city. He thought the Dominion Government was not making a sincere attempt to better conditions in Canada. Alderman Brown told of several cases of single men from the camps being turned loose in the city without food or shelter.

"It's a sign of moral weakness on the part of the Government," remarked the Mayor.

Aldermen decided to visit Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, in an attempt to have the Provincial Government shoulder a greater portion of relief costs to the city.

SHELTER TO MAKE APPEAL APRIL 20

Tag Day in Aid of Recreation
Rooms to Be Held Here—
Taggers Needed

For the third successive year the committee of the Citizens' Recreation Room (the unemployed shelter) is hoping the general public will come to its aid by contributing small sums on its annual tag day, which is scheduled for Saturday, April 20.

The tag day committee, under the chairmanship of H. D. Patterson, is composed of R. F. Taylor, S. M. Lamb, Gilbert G. Fraser, A. S. Hundleby, H. H. Smith and Mesdames Styles Sehl, A. S. Christie, R. W. Hurst and Miss Dallain. The organization meeting has been held and all necessary arrangements have been made to make the effort a most successful one.

SHELTER STILL NEEDED
The general committee, through its first-hand knowledge of the fact that hundreds of men still use the shelter daily, wishes to assure the citizens of Greater Victoria that it is still necessary to keep the shelter open.

The success of this year's tag day is vital to the finances of the shelter—there is just about enough on hand to keep it open until the end of April—and the committee appeals to people of both sexes from "teen age onward, to come forward and volunteer to help on April 20 by taking a place on the business streets with a box for contributions from the passers by. Telephone the secretary, A. S. Hundleby, at Empire 6932.

Peter Makes a Startling Recovery
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Were you ever terribly frightened? If so, you know just how Peter Rabbit felt as he dived under that pile of old treecuts just as Hooty the Owl was about to seize him in his great cruel claws. Peter's heart was right up in his mouth. At least that is the way it felt to Peter. He crawled under the branches, and there he crouched perfectly still. When his heart had quieted down a little Peter felt better. It doesn't take him long to recover from such frights, for he is used to them. They are a part of his daily life. Under that pile of brush he felt perfectly safe.

"I fooled him that time," chuckled Peter. "My, but he certainly did give me a scare. I don't see why he is hanging around here for, anyway. No one he is likely to catch lives around here. I guess the best thing for me to do is to spend the rest of the night here. It certainly won't be safe for me to go out for a long time yet. I've spent a night in worse places than this. I think I'll explore a little underneath this pile of brush and see what it is like."

So Peter Rabbit crept and crawled underneath the great pile of fallen trees until he had nearly reached the centre of the pile. Then as he poked his head out from under a tree at the bottom of the pile he received one of the most startling

COOPER, STEN IN NEW PRODUCTION

Famous Players Have Leading Roles in Capitol Theatre Film "The Wedding Night"

Gary Cooper embodies his familiar role of soldier and Anna Sten becomes a modern girl in Samuel Goldwyn's production of "The Wedding Night," which begins a three-day run at the Capitol Theatre today.

The film, a dramatic romance, depicts a situation familiar to all people—the revolt of the younger generation against the dictates and commands of the older generation.

Cooper, as a famous author whose ability has been lost in the mad shuffle of New York parties, goes to his Connecticut home to rest and seek inspiration for a new book. He meets and falls in love with a neighboring farm girl, played by Anna Sten, who looks after his home when his luxury-loving wife leaves him to return to gay New York.

The author and the girl realize they must remain silent because he is married and she is engaged to a man selected by her father, whom she does not love. Facing a life of drudgery, she revolts against the blind tradition of her parents.

Siegfried Rumann appears as her father, Ralph Bellamy as the sturdy son of the soil he chooses for her husband, and Helen Vinson as the wife of Cooper.

DOMINION The horse which Gary Cooper rides in the leading role of Paramount's "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," now at the Dominion Theatre, is a full-blooded Arabian steed. It was specially purchased from the famous Kellogg stables for Cooper's use in the picture. Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell, Sir Guy Standing, Monte Blue and Kathleen Burke are also featured in "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer."

Mayor David Leeming Gives Talk
On Tourist Trade Development to Kiwanians

Unless citizens get behind the tourist trade development movement, Victoria will go into a slump from which she cannot expect to emerge for a long time, Mayor David Leeming stated yesterday, when giving a brief talk at the Kiwanis Club luncheon in the Empress Hotel.

He said a drive for funds would start on April 29, in charge of Frank Paulding. Others taking part will be T. P. McConnell, W. F. Pinfold, Lieut.-Colonel Brooke Stephenson, Ald. T. W. Hawkins, Frank Partidge and E. G. Robbottson.

C. Edwood Watkins stated that R. Williams would represent the Kiwanis Club during the international conference at San Antonio, Texas. Rev. E. F. Church introduced Ralph David Matthews, a new member.

President Rowan W. Mackenzie reminded clubmen of the Divisional Kiwanis Conference to be held at Mount Vernon on April 15, the Victoria Day Celebration Committee ball at the Empress Hotel on April 25, and the Colwood Golf Club dinner on April 23.

STAGE SHOW PRAISED BY PAPER REVIEWERS

"Hi-Lites of Rhythm" is the title of the new Wilbur Cushman revue which will open its engagement of two days at the Empire Theatre on Friday. There will be several performances that day and also on Saturday.

Press reviewers of newspapers in all cities where the revue has played during the last few weeks have been loud in their praise of this show. "The title is a very fitting one," said the theatrical critic of The Vancouver Sun, in speaking of the revue a few days ago. "Rhythmical dances, music and songs told a series of turns with a comedy background. The Four Rounders gave a pleasing act, in which they sing and provide harmony that won unanimous

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

YOUR BODY HAS GREAT RE-SERVE STRENGTH

A physician knows that the body is not like a machine that is working at its greatest capacity all the time. As a matter of fact, your body is capable of doing a great deal more work than it is ever called upon to do.

Thus we find an extra eye, an extra lung, an extra kidney, extra glands in various parts of the body; we know that the liver is much larger than it needs to be, that the heart can beat twice as often and pump twice as much blood, with every beat as it does under ordinary circumstances. In fact, half of such important organs as the liver, pancreas, kidneys, lungs, stomach, small intestine and large intestine could be removed and the body would still keep on doing its work.

As Prof. W. B. Cannon, Harvard University, points out, Nature is ready for more than the ordinary needs of the body, and it is because the body has this extra strength which it can use in emergencies that the physician is able to restore health to those who are sick.

A trained physician knows the body, knows how much extra strength the body can exert in emergencies and endeavors to prevent anything interfering with the body's effort to use this extra power or strength.

Thus outside heat, and heat manufactured by the body by the processes going on within it, may increase the body temperature to a dangerous height unless the alert physician prevents it. Or great fear can act on certain organs and cause great body disturbance. The family physician can so explain this that the patient is reassured and loses his fear.

Now when anything goes wrong with the body, the physician knows that if given time the body will right itself because of this extra or reserve strength it possesses, and the physician is able to explain to the patient why time is necessary to recovery and thus instills patience and hope in the patient.

"In the body there are admirable devices for maintaining its ability to keep on working despite attacks of illness from within and without, and there is extra strength and extra working ability if special needs arise."

Therefore when we are afflicted

TO ASSIST CLUB IN MUSICAL PROGRAMME

The Dominion Academy of Music, under Stanley Shale, will assist the Eurydice Art Club with its programme on April 12, at the Shrine Auditorium, and senior students, with one exception, will contribute piano, vocal and elocution numbers during the evening. The exception alluded to above will appear in the person of Robin Wood, aged ten, who will play his own composition.

A highlight of the programme, and one of great interest to Victorians in general, will be the singing by Josephine Charlebois of a poem by Audrey Alexandra Brown, which has been set to music by Stanley Shale. The "Dryad in Nainia" will thus be presented for the first time in musical form to local audiences.

Other items of outstanding interest are a group of piano solos, composed by Stanley Shale and played by Maquinn Daniels, and the performance by Evelyn Harper of the Second Rhapsody of Liszt.

Entire proceeds of this concert are in aid of the funds of the Eurydice Art Club, and tickets may be obtained at Fletcher Bros. and the Willis Piano Company.

University, points out, Nature is ready for more than the ordinary needs of the body, and it is because the body has this extra strength which it can use in emergencies that the physician is able to restore health to those who are sick.

A trained physician knows the body, knows how much extra strength the body can exert in emergencies and endeavors to prevent anything interfering with the body's effort to use this extra power or strength.

Thus outside heat, and heat manufactured by the body by the processes going on within it, may increase the body temperature to a dangerous height unless the alert physician prevents it. Or great fear can act on certain organs and cause great body disturbance. The family physician can so explain this that the patient is reassured and loses his fear.

Now when anything goes wrong with the body, the physician knows that if given time the body will right itself because of this extra or reserve strength it possesses, and the physician is able to explain to the patient why time is necessary to recovery and thus instills patience and hope in the patient.

"In the body there are admirable devices for maintaining its ability to keep on working despite attacks of illness from within and without, and there is extra strength and extra working ability if special needs arise."

MAROONS TROUNCE LEAFS TO WIN STANLEY CUP

Barney Ross Retains Welter Crown by Scoring One-Sided Decision

Negro Proves No Match for Clever Chicago Fighter

Henry Woods Shows Gameness in Staying Limit After Spraining Leg in Early Rounds of Title Bout—Ross Has Decided Edge—Sammy McLarnin Gains Decision

SEATTLE, April 9 (AP).—Barney Ross, of Chicago, easily defended his junior welterweight championship against Henry Woods, Yakima, tonight, but the Northwest boy managed to stay the full route of twelve rounds, despite a sore right leg injured when he was knocked down in the third stanza. Ross weighed 136½ pounds, and Woods, 137½.

Between 8,000 and 9,000 Northwest fans packed the civic auditorium to see the first world championship fight ever held in Seattle. Woods got a big cheer for his gameness and for managing to last all the way, although having limped badly through four rounds before he seemed to get his bearings again.

After two slow rounds, which both boys were feeling each other out, Ross opened up with a barrage, smashing a right to the negro's jaw, which sent Woods sprawling to the canvas. Woods took a count of nine and shuffled furiously out of danger until the bell.

WOODS LIMPS BADLY
As he went to his corner, Woods limped badly, holding on to his right leg. Referee Tommy McCarthy asked him what was wrong, and Woods said he thought he had sprained his leg when he was knocked down.

He tried to walk around the ring and then sat down. McCarthy told Woods he would have to continue; that the fight could not be called off. The negro drew big applause as he came out for the fourth round.

Ross tore in with both fists in an attempt to finish the bout, but Woods hopped and spun on one leg, and weaved and ducked out of danger, keeping away from the hardest blows.

He continued to shuffle through the next three rounds and then appeared to have the use of both legs again.

Woods went down again in the eighth round for an instant, but it was more of a slip than a blow that sent him to the canvas.

Ross worked on Woods' body in murderous fashion through the last four rounds, and had taken virtually all the fight out of the negro by the time the match was over.

ROSS EASES UP
The champion appeared to take it easy several times during the bout, but whenever he opened up he ripped Woods all over the ring and charged him against the ropes.

Roy Ockley, Portland, won decision, another Northwest junior welterweight, over Bobby Luscombe, Vancouver, B.C., in the six-round opener, flooring Luscombe with a right to the jaw in the final round.

Baby Palmore, Hollywood featherweight, knocked out George Alcantana, Manila, in the third of a scheduled six round with a left uppercut to the jaw.

Ford Smith, Kalispell, Mont., heavyweight, won a six-round decision against Tony Souza, of Fresno, Calif.

SAMMY McLARNIN WINS
Sammy McLarnin, Vancouver, B.C., middleweight, won decision over "Red" Gregory, of Hollywood, in the six-round semi-final. Sammy's famous brother, Jimmy, who reigned the world welter title from Ross in New York last year, had the first ringside seat behind Sammy's corner and shouted advice to him between rounds.

Sammy knocked down Gregory in the second round, and twice just before the final bell in the sixth. Gregory, however, had McLarnin in a bad way in the fourth and fifth with hard body punches. They put McLarnin on the defensive, but he weathered the storm.

Both boys were tired at the end. Gregory staggering weakly across the ring.

Gracie Goes Down During First Game

The troops are gathered around their smitten comrade as Bob Gracie goes down hard from heavy body checks presented by the Toronto Leafs' defence during the first game of the Stanley Cup series, which was won last night by the Montreal Maroons in three straight games. Players on both sides grouped around Gracie, and then "Red" Horner and King Clancy, Toronto players, picked him up and carried him to the dressing room, where he lay stretched on a table for several minutes. Rumors flew fast regarding the injury, but Gracie was back in the game before the finish.

OAK BAY WINS FINAL FIXTURE

Defeats Victoria High School Girls' Grass Hockey Squad, 2-0

Scoring twice in the final half, Oak Bay High School grass hockey eleven yesterday afternoon defeated Victoria High School, 2-0, in the final and deciding game of the May Tully Shield series, played on their home grounds.

After a scoreless initial stanza, Oak Bay forged to the front when Sheila Swift scored with a terrific drive from close range. Victoria rallied after this marker, and despite a number of dangerous attacks on the Oak Bay goal could not score. Towards the end of the fixture, Annie Turner, captain of the Oak Bay squad, put the game in the cooler when she scored the final goal of the match.

PRESENTS SHIELD
At the conclusion of the match Miss Mona Miller presented the trophy to Annie Turner.

Miss M. Miller and Miss E. Burridge handled the game and the teams lined up as follows:

Wrestling Count May Return Here For Another Bout

COUNT George Zarnoff, Ukrainian mat man, who gained instant popularity last Saturday evening at the Tillamook Gymnasium, may return here this week. Promoter Fred Richardson, local wrestling impresario, stated yesterday. The count defeated Mike Strehlich, another lad who was given a great hand, two falls to one in the main event, and the fans went for him to such an extent that many have asked for his return for Saturday night's squirm card. The local matchmaker got busy immediately and today hopes to be able to announce that he has been successful in landing the colorful Russian count for this week's card.

MONTREALERS TAKE PRO CHAMPIONSHIP IN STRAIGHT GAMES

Tommy Gorman Guides Squad Through to Historic Trophy by Crushing Toronto Under by 4-1 Score—Winners Display Superiority—Connell Turns in Great Game

In the last minute of the first period, Lionel Conacher took a penalty for tripping "Red" Metz and Connie Smythe rushed five forwards on the ice. They were struggling around Maroons' goal when Jimmy Ward trapped them. He raced for Hainsworth's end, got a shot away, and "Baldy" Northcott picked up the rebound and shot. Again there was a rebound, and Ward hammered it home for the first goal.

Toronto began a bone-crushing attack in the second period. At the 12:50-minute mark, Bill Thoms worked clear and took Frankie Finnigan's short pass for the equalizer.

Four minutes later Maroons struck with lightning suddenness for two goals and victory. Baldy Northcott hurled a pass to Ward and raced for the goal mouth. Ward shot and Baldy, almost in the crease, tipped it home. The puck was barely faced off when Northcott gave Cy Wentworth the puck near the Toronto blue line, and the sturdy defenceman worked doggedly past Red Horner and Clancy for a rising scoring shot.

Wentworth opened the third period with a breakaway rush, Gus Marker trailing after him. Wentworth drew the defence and gave the right-winger a clear path for a score.

For the next nineteen minutes Maroons' defence took a terrific hammering as Connie Smythe kept waving in on them.

Maroons' road to world honors took them through seven play-off games without loss. They defeated Chicago Black Hawks, 1-0, in a two-game series and eliminated New York Rangers, 6-5, in the final. Toronto had downed Boston Bruins, 3-1, in games to win the National Hockey League championship and qualify for the cup final.

Wentworth scored a goal and an assist while performing heroically on the defence. Jimmy Ward and Baldy Northcott shared the honors, not only holding the Toronto bombers, Charlie Conacher and Busher Jackson, scoreless, but scoring a goal each. Northcott had two assists and Ward one.

Gus Marker got the other. Thirteen thousand saw the game. Only once before had the Stanley Cup been settled in three straight games, the Leafs themselves accomplishing that feat in 1932 by knocking over New York Rangers.

SECOND PERIOD
The victory was the second straight Stanley Cup victory for Gorman, who led Chicago Black Hawks to world championship honors last season and joined Maroons shortly before the 1934-35 training camp opened.

Toronto fought doggedly, but could not solve the sturdy Maroon defence. When they did break through, Alex Connell was impregnable. Maroons played their scoring changes coolly to net a goal in the first period and two more within twelve seconds of each other in the second after Toronto had tied the score.

FIRST PERIOD
The speeding figure of Buzz Boll hurtled down the right-hand boards for the first shot on goal. Happy

Hero of Stanley Cup Series
The goal seemed to take the heart out of the Leafs for a moment, and Maroons nearly scored twice again on sudden lone sorties.

Maroons were tiring and content to let the Leafs carry the play to them, waiting for a break. The Montrealers took to slamming the puck up the ice.

Ward and Hooley Smith broke away, but a rolling puck broke Smith's pass at the goalmouth. They were scrambling in a corner at the Maroon end when the bell rang and a great shout of triumph went up from the Maroon fans.

Summary
First Period—1, Maroons, Ward (Northcott) 19:35. Penalties: Horner, L. Conacher. Shots stopped: Hainsworth 3, Connell 6.

Second Period—2, Toronto, Thoms (Finnigan) 12:39; 3, Maroons, Northcott (Ward) 16:18; 4, Maroons, Wentworth (Northcott) 16:30. Penalties: None. Shots stopped: Hainsworth 12, Connell 9.

Third Period—5, Maroons, Marker (Wentworth) 1:02. Penalties: None. Shots stopped: Hainsworth 5, Connell 3.

ALEX CONNELL
VETERAN goalie, who was the hero of the Stanley Cup series, which ended last night when the Montreal Maroons turned back the Toronto Maple Leafs in three straight games, Connell was nearly invincible during the fixtures and saved the Montrealers time and again with his phenomenal stops.

SHOW INTEREST IN ROAD RACE

Britannia Branch Annual Good Friday Event to Be Held Again This Year

The Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., reports that interest is being aroused in the annual Good Friday road races. It is anticipated that the Navy will furnish considerable competition for the races this year, though the Sixteenth Battalion, C.E.F., has also entries in for the senior race. The Y.M.C.A. has not yet filed any entries, but can be relied upon to be well to the fore as in previous years.

All competitors in the senior race are reminded they will require amateur cards for the year 1935. These cards may be obtained through C. V. McConnell, Victoria Sporting Goods store.

The courses for the various races are as follows:

Seniors (nine miles)—Start: Leave headquarters on View Street, proceed along Douglas Street to Roger Avenue, turning on that corner into Quadra Street, along Quadra Street to View Street to starting point.

Juniors (five miles)—Start: Leave headquarters on View Street, proceed along Douglas Street to Cloverdale Avenue, along Cloverdale Avenue to Quadra Street, along Quadra Street to View Street to starting point.

Juveniles (two miles)—Start: Leave headquarters on View Street, proceed along Douglas Street to Beacon Street, thence turn rounding markers, returning along Douglas Street to starting point.

The age limit for the three races are—Seniors: Over eighteen years; Juniors: Over fourteen years and under eighteen years; Juveniles: under fourteen years.

Entry forms for the above races may be obtained from the secretary's office, 713 View Street, same having to be filed before Monday, April 15.

FAVORS CLOSING OF HIGHLAND DISTRICT
Closing off of the Highland district for the next two years is asked in a resolution to be submitted at Thursday's meeting of the Victoria and District Fish and Game Association at the Chamber of Commerce.

One of the most popular hunting grounds on Vancouver Island, the area is rapidly becoming depleted of game birds and deer, and it is felt that some conservation move is necessary to protect this area. Many other important items will be discussed at the party, which is scheduled to commence at 7:30 o'clock.

WINNIPEG QUINETTE EVENS UP WESTERN SERIES

Toilers Climb Back Into Hoop Picture By Narrow Victory

Former Dominion Champions Show Reversal of Form and Beat Out Raymond Union Jacks in Second Game, 41-38—Opposition for Blue Ribbons Will Be Named Tonight

RAYMOND, Alta., April 9 (CP).—Winnipeg Toilers climbed to even terms with Raymond Union Jacks in the semi-final Western Canada basketball series by defeating Jacks, 41-38, here tonight. Raymond won the first game last night, 49-28 and tomorrow night's fixture will be a sudden-death affair for the right to meet Victoria Blue Ribbons in the final.

The teams fought on even terms in the first quarter, each scoring nine points, but in the second the Toilers' attack began to click and a series of smooth plays had the Winnipeg crew leading 26-19 at half time.

In the third quarter Raymond fell further behind to trail 38-27. A rousing rally by Union Jacks in the last quarter enabled them to threaten again, but Toilers managed to hold off the Raymond attack to finish with a three-point lead, 41-38.

LEADS ATTACK

Bobbie Hampton, diminutive Toiler forward, led the Winnipeg team to victory by scoring sixteen points. Lauder Phillips, one of the veterans who survived the airplane crash that killed four members of the team in the summer of 1933, tallied eight more and Bruce Dodds,

TORCHY PEDEN LEADING RACE

Local Rider and Two Partners in Front—Fight Enlivens Sprint

PITTSBURGH, April 9 (AP).—A free-for-all fight tonight enlivened the six-day bike races in which four teams were tied for the lead at 10 o'clock.

A sprint was staged for two cases of beer, and Charley Winter and Reggie Fleming, who were nosed out by Torch Peden, of Victoria, staged a showing contest aboard their bikes. When they left the track they "mixed it," and a score of spectators and camp followers joined in before firemen posted at the hall separated the battlers.

FINANCE - COMMERCE - MARKETS

Stocks Jump in Closing Minutes At Wall Street

NEW YORK, April 9 (CP).—The stock market jumped like a startled peacock in the final few minutes of trading today.

A sudden burst of enthusiasm for the metal shares appeared to create a rush for equities, but most of the list evinced a readiness to respond to buying.

A number of leaders got ahead, 1 to 3 points or so, while U.S. Smelting, a metal stock recently freely offered, was 53-4 points higher at 104-3/4. Volume was 859,184 shares.

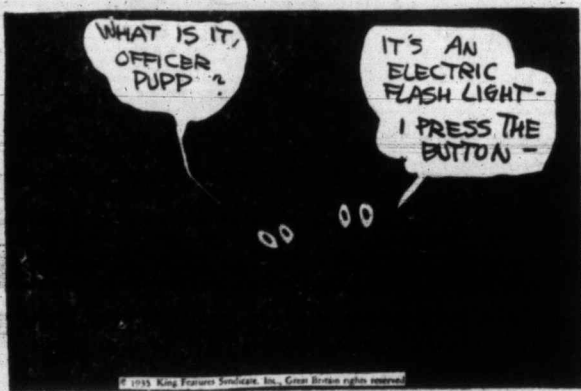

Besides the 6-point rise in U.S. Smelting, other silver issues picking up 1 to 2 points included Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting and Peru, and American Smelting and Copper. Gold and copper shares, as a whole, exhibited a considerably-improved tone.

American Telephone at 107-1/2 advanced 2-3/4 points, and Union Pacific at 90-1/2 was up 1-1/2. Others gaining 1 to 2 points each were U.S. Steel at 31-1/2, Westinghouse at 38-1/8, Allied Chemical at 13-1/4, Santa Fe at 40-1/4, Montgomery Ward at 25-1/4 and New York Central at 153-8.

Small gains were the rule among Canadian stocks. The bond market tried to get enthusiastic about a late rally in stocks today, but was held in check somewhat by indifference in U.S. Governments and high-priced corporate issues.

The general tone was firm. A generally steady trend ruled the foreign department.

Why Do We Call It Dollar?

A good many of our readers would perhaps rather know the end rather than the origin of our dollar. Ours, however, is the role of the historian rather than the prophet. So we will just skip to our knitting.

Dollar, respice our refusal to become enmeshed in foreign entanglements, is from the German thaler. And thaler, for which let us be grateful, is an abbreviation of Joachimsthaler.

The Joachimsthaler was a coin which made its first appearance at about the beginning of the sixteenth century in the valley (German thal) of St. Joachim, in Bohemia, now part of Czechoslovakia.

COMPANIES ACT CHANGES ASKED

Commission Would Eliminate Voting Superiority of Preference Shares

OTTAWA, April 9 (C.P.).—In three brief sentences, the report of the Commission on the Companies Act, 1929, recommends the elimination of voting superiority of the preferred share, and the establishment of equal voting rights for all shareholders.

Jane Dixon Says:

WIFE OF TWENTY YEARS, DISGUSTED WITH HUSBAND, WISHES FREEDOM

Now and again a worm that has been a very dependable, tractable worm all its life, suddenly turns.

Overnight the nice easy-going worm becomes a strange animal with claws and sharp teeth.

I speak, of course, of human worms.

Don't you agree that those of us who have been watching the poor worm wriggle along through life get a real thrill when it rears up its head, unsheaths its claws, and walks upright, as human beings should walk?

Dear Jane Dixon: I should be so glad if you would give me your advice in my perplexity.

I have been married twenty-five years and have no family.

My husband is no provider and we have no companionship together.

All these years I have made a brave attempt to reconcile myself to these conditions. Now I have a small competence and a chance to spend my remaining years with a congenial female relative. I do so much want to avail myself of this opportunity to finish my stretch without a burden on my back.

I have hitherto supported myself and paid half of the household expenses. I bought all our household effects and paid for them out of my earnings.

Do you think I am justified in leaving my no-account husband to seek my peace and happiness? I say no-account because recently I have discovered that he has once again taken up with an undesirable woman. He has near relatives with whom he can very comfortably live.

I am a wife in name only and feel free to make a bid for some joy in life.

If I leave him do you think I should dispose of the household effects which are really mine? I shall be grateful for your counsel in this crisis and await your counsel before deciding.—Perplexed Wife.

Answer: You place me in a very difficult position my dear Perplexed Wife. You want me to say: "Yes, go on your way. You have earned your freedom from the burden that has so long bowed your shoulders."

I am tempted to say it, too—until I remember that you have lived with your husband for twenty-five years, a quarter of a century.

Existing conditions in your home, those you have confided to me, are just about as insufferable as one can imagine. The trouble about advising is that the picture you have given me is so incomplete.

For example, I do not know what understanding or agreement was entered into by you and your husband when you married. If you entered into the partnership in full knowledge that you were expected to do fifty per cent of the providing, and to furnish the equipment for home-making, then you have kept your bargain and it is far too late to declaim against it.

If, however, you were deceived into believing you would take care of the home and your husband would do the financing of it, then you have just cause for complaint.

Let me caution you that a woman who has had her own home for many years misses it terribly when it is gone, no matter how kind and congenial her new surroundings. If you have definitely decided to break with your husband, why not take your household effects, or those of them you value most, to some cosy place you can call your own. The furnishings you bought belong, of course, to you, and you are at liberty to dispose of them as you choose.

Personally I do not believe it is fair or healthy for either husband or wife, this living together in the farce of marriage when even friendship no longer exists between them. But that is a personal opinion. Many women do so live, and men, too. In the case of children the situation is understandable, for it is not a farce, but a convenience and a protection of the young. When there are no children, it seems to me that each should be free to seek for the happiness he or she has missed.

Before you make a definite decision search your heart well. Make certain it is an honest and urgent desire for freedom that actuates you, not merely anger with your husband for his philanderings and his failure.

LOCAL GEOLOGY IS EXPLAINED

Rev. Robert Connell, M.P.P., Gives First Address to New Society

Time was counted in millions of years and distance was measured by hundreds of miles when Rev. Robert Connell, M.P.P., Monday night, in Victoria College addressed the first meeting of the newly-formed Victoria Geological Society on the subject, "Geology of the Southern Part of Vancouver Island."

SHOWS FOSSILS

In an interesting manner, Mr. Connell related the prehistoric story of this part of the world as recorded in the different rock layers. He showed several fossils of coral similar to that in tropical and semi-tropical waters. These specimens were obtained by Mr. Connell from Cowichan Lake.

In the earliest of times, Vancouver Island was in a trough, with a high land east of the Coast Range and another high ridge far out in the Pacific Ocean, he said. At that time the waters were of a tropical nature. Millions of years later, according to Mr. Connell, the waters became cooler until the time of the first ice period, when a great mass of ice moved down from the interior of the present British Columbia, gouged its way between Vancouver Island and the Mainland until it came to the present Strait of Juan de Fuca, where it turned west and slipped into the ocean. A second ice flow occurred at a later date, the speaker added.

DREAMED OF SOCIETY

Mr. Connell told of the various rock formations and fossils found at Gordon Head, Albert Head and on the lower West Coast of the Island.

In opening his address, Mr. Connell said he was pleased to see the formation of the geological society, for he had long dreamed of such an association.

The Beautiful Derelict

CHAPTER IX
While Vera Van Zandt was still with him, Fleming Stone had heard a footstep far along the veranda and he now waited for it to sound again. It did, and in another moment Steve Holt came jauntily along.

"Don't be alarmed, Mr. Stone," Holt said. "I will keep you but a few moments."

"Why should a longer stay alarm me?" Stone sounded skeptical.

"Well, you have had a long and well-filled day. And perhaps you want to get off by yourself to rest or to wrestle with your problem. But do you mind telling me just how you are going about the solving of this murder mystery?"

"Very much."

"Oh, very well. But just tell me this. Shall you start in with the idea that the murders were committed by someone now in this house, or by someone from outside whom we may not even know or know of?"

"Yes. Just that. I shall start in with the idea that the murders were committed by someone now in this house, or by someone from outside, whom we may not know or know of."

"You're not at your best when you try to be funny," Holt said, with a sneer.

"Nor are you," Stone returned. "Now, Mr. Holt, we may as well be friendly. I am not given to asking anyone to help me in my work—the real creative work, which belongs to me alone. But I must ask those who know for certain data, for dates of occurrences, for questions of relationship and for accounts of actions known only to certain ones. Without these facts I should be somewhat in the position of the Jumbies, who went to sea in a sieve. What do you know that might be helpful?"

"I do not think Barry and Elkins were killed by the same person."

"You have a reason for this belief of yours? Is your reason subjective or objective? Do you want to know my opinion as to a single murderer or two of them, because of some deep interest of your own, or some concern for another?"

"Why, both, I suppose. I want to know for my own satisfaction, and I want to know because it will affect others very deeply."

"And since you have decided the matter in your own mind, why do you think there were two murderers?"

"I don't. I think the doctors are wrong, and that Van died a natural death."

Next morning Stone stepped out of his room to the balcony and watched the surf frothily tumbling in and rolling out again.

Dan Wayne joined him and said, almost abruptly, "Good morning, Mr. Stone—have a good rest? Can you sleep with the sea pounding? Breakfast's ready, but stop a minute. Are you going to search the house today? Is that part of your routine?"

"I dare say the police will expect to do something of the sort," Stone said. "Better not make objections. They won't really disturb things, and they are suspicious of people who show unwillingness."

"I'm not at all unwilling for myself or my family," Dan said. "I want anything and everything done."

Before breakfast was over the police came, and it was plain to be seen Inspector Cox was on the watch. He strode into the breakfast room and informed those who were there that he proposed to interview them all, and separately.

"Who was the last to see Mr. Barry Wayne and Mr. Van Zandt as they left the house?"

"I was," said Jane. "I was mad because dad wouldn't let me go with Barry, and I went out the door with him. He went over to the yacht club in a motor car. Leonard was driving. Mr. Van Zandt was already in the car when I came out the front door with Barry. He said he'd—"

"Wait, Miss Holt," Cox said. "Wait till I begin to question you. Will you come into another room? Stone, are you coming with us?"

"Yes," and Stone rose from the table. Cox led the way to a room that had been prepared for him, and the three took their places at a round table.

"Now, Miss Holt," and the Inspector spoke somewhat brusquely. "Just tell all there is to tell in a few words about your going to the yacht race in some other boat than that of your fiancé."

"There's little to tell about that," Jane returned, a little shortly. "Since I couldn't go with Barry, I had to go in the Campton boat. Rod Campton is a neighbor and his yacht is a large one. We all went over to Newport to lunch with the Mannings, but when Barry and Van didn't show up, we didn't know what to do."

"You waited for them?"

"We waited, off and on, all day. The party went out, in different boats, you know—there were lots of boats—and then they'd go back to see if the Mad Anthony had appeared yet."

"You stayed at the Manning home?"

"Yes. I had promised to meet Barry there, so I stayed, hoping he would come."

"I see you were there alone?"

"Oh, no. There were others coming and going. A buffet luncheon was on, and the guests would rush in and eat something and rush out again."

"But you just waited. You didn't go out at all to see the race?"

"I didn't go out till late afternoon. Interest in the race was over then, but I wanted to find Barry."

"In what way did you try, Miss Holt?" Stone asked her.

"Mr. Campton was still there, and I asked him to take me around."

"He had kept his big yacht?"

"Oh, no; somebody else took that home and took his other guests. He got a fast little motor launch from somewhere, and we went to two or three yacht clubs and one or two hotels where we knew people to see if we could hear anything of Barry. But we didn't."

"And then what did you do?" Cox asked.

"Who? Rodney Campton and I?"

"Yes, Miss Holt."

"Oh, we went over to a dance at the Waylands. I expected to go there with Barry, and as he wasn't around, I went with Rod. I left word here with Mrs. Mingle to tell Barry to come along when he got home. Of course I had no idea what had happened."

"No, of course not. Now, Miss Holt, just in your own mind, how do you think young Mr. Wayne came by his death?"

"Why, Mr. Cox, I haven't the slightest idea. How could I have?"

"You don't think, then, Miss Holt," Stone said, "that it could have been the deed of Van Zandt? Now, don't say Mr. Van Zandt was a slight, small man—I don't mean that way—but had he been quite capable of the deed physically, had he any motive?"

Jane Holt looked serious. "To my mind, Mr. Stone, it would take a pretty strong motive to make a man commit murder; but I do know that Mr. Van Zandt was angry because Barry had flirted a little with Vera, Mr. Van Zandt's wife."

"And why would Barry do that?" Stone looked incredulous.

"Because he wanted to stir up my jealousy. That sounds absurd, but it is true. Barry was a splendid big thing, but he had a foolish notion that I didn't love him as much as he loved me. I did, you know; but, in my turn, I used to tease him, pretending I didn't. Whereupon he would make love to Vera, and she would be delighted. That would make Van mad, and he would go for Barry, but I only laughed at the whole affair, so Barry didn't get any kick out of it at all."

"You say you took it lightly," Stone went on. "Can it be that Barry took it more seriously than you knew and when he found himself alone with Van Zandt on the yacht, he took occasion to pick a quarrel with him and in a spasm of anger gave him a poisoned drink, which brought about his death?"

Jane Holt thought in silence for a moment. "It doesn't make sense," she said. "The little cupboard where Barry kept his drinks was not unlocked when the yacht was found. There was no bottle or glass to be seen. And, then, who killed Barry, and why?"

"We will excuse you now, Miss Holt," Stone told her. "If you please, will you ask Mrs. Van Zandt to come here?"

"Also Sergeant Bascom," the Inspector added.
